

Title of Article: The Effect of Capital Adequacy on Banks' Performance: Evidence From Nigeria

Author(s): Chinonye Okafor, Kelikume, I. and Umoren Bimpe

Outlet: Journal of Business Research, Institute of Professional Studies, Ghana. Vol.: 4, No. 1 and 2
Date of Publication: 2010

Abstract: The study examined the effect of Capital Adequacy on Banks' Performance in Nigeria. It revealed that that the consolidation exercise that reinforced the capital base of the banks from a minimum capital base of N2 billion to N25 Billion was a step in the right direction and suggested that for enhancement of banks' performance in the post consolidation era, there is need for effective regulatory framework in the management of Nigerian banks' liquidity and capital.